Comments: I am a native Montanan who lives out of the state due to the lack of quality employment. I would love nothing more than to move home. This type of project does not provide employment for families to live in Montana. I live in Colorado where this type of development has already ruined the state. My only option is to bring my family home to Montana on vacations to see the beauty I grew up with. It is outrageous how out of state investors can come to a place like Montana and think the next step is to pave it over and build projects that ruin the very reason to be in Montana. My son and I have hiked the Bob and I hope his kids can go with him some day to see the same unspoiled beauty. Mr. Steele should be removed from the position of making the decision to sell out Montana and the people who truly appreciate what it means to be a Montanan. It does not mean growth and traffic that will affect Holland Lake and the surrounding wilderness. Areas like this in Montana are meant to be seen on foot or horseback. If you can't do that then watch a video from your home out of state. If this kind of project goes forward it will only embolden more greed from out of state developers and the further the erosion of the Montana lifestyle.
