Comments: Holland lake is an incredibly special place-special not just because of its beauty, but because of the experiences that are had there. Camping trips, days by the lake, weddings, hiking trips and more. The most important detail about these experiences, however, is that they are open to EVERYONE. One of the greatest disservice's we have done to the land in this country is the privatization of it. Land is not something that is supposed to be owned, it is something to be honored and cared for. The last thing Holland Lake needs is more colonization. I, and everyone else who has provided their opinion here, speak strongly because we feel strongly. Holland lake is a place unlike anywhere else I have seen in Montana, and whenever someone asks where to go to see what Montana offers, I urge them to seek out the beauty that Holland lake has to offer. Beauty that is not just for the super rich. I cannot express enough the importance of stopping any and all industrialization of Holland lake. It is not spreading accessibility to the beauty of the land, it's limiting it. It is not increasing the value of the land, it's hindering it. It is not the caring of the land, it is the rape of it. Please, do the right thing.
