Comments: I am writing to support the lovely lodge at Holland Lake. It seems more and more Montana is becoming more mansions, more expensive, less simple. I have lived here most of my life- 60 years.

I grew up in Montana. My Dad grew up in Montana. It didn't used to be this way. I remember.

I am not sure how many residents can say the same. So many have moved here - many in the government are not originally from the state. There is alot of money coming in and money to be made here. I am hoping dollars are not the bottom line. We can keep a keep a piece of the truly charming Montana like the one Steinbeck loved in Travels with Charley. We don't need a huge expensive business on every small corner of summertime fun. The existing lodge is a part of the beautiful slow pace, the simple, the beloved. Remember that Montana? I am hoping we can keep a part of it.
