Comments: When I first saw a post regarding the Holland Lake expansion proposal I thought it was a Facebook joke, or misinformation that got out of hand. Unfortunately it's no joke.

My vote on this project is ABSOLUTELY NOT. My family has been coming to Holland Lake for over 20 years, and every summer we looked forward to camping and canoeing on Holland Lake. Those who love Holland, love it for exactly what it is and what has been-quiet, pristine, and void of developed chaos.

It's appalling and disappointing the owners would potentially sell out to a company that will triple the current footprint of the lodge, and in turn attract the traffic and tourists to match. I guarantee no Montanan who cherishes Holland wants this development. While the current lodge may only utilize a few acres, the proposed development will affect the entirety of Holland Lake recreational area and beyond. The owner may have his reasons but the lodge sits on public lands. The public has a right to input and oppose the plans in place.

For those who desire a catered luxury lake experience, there are already plenty of other places for that. No Montanan wishes there was a bigger resort in such a beautiful place. Leave it alone.
