Comments: As a born and raised Montanan, I grew up taking summer trips to Holland Lake. Spending hot days in the lake, paddle boarding before a night around the campfire, and celebrating every birthday until I turned 14 surrounded by the sound of the falls. Holland Lake is not only a beautiful recreational area that should be preserved for future generations to explore, it is a meaningful memory to many families that have close ties to Montana. It doesn't matter if new property buyers want to refurbish the lodge and build glamorous cabins, nothing will ever make Holland Lake better than it already is. Renovating and refurbishing this land will not only encourage large tourism to a sacred space, but also ruin the natural beauty of such a wonderful lake and forest. The campgrounds should remain as they have always been, tucked away and close to our hearts. Please do not take away such a tender memory from us or ruin such a special place.
