Comments: As a MONTANAN it makes me so incredibly sad to see what is proposed for Holland Lake. My dad is retired USFS and I grew up enjoying and appreciating the forest; as well as my own children and now my grandchildren. It is already a challenge to entice younger generations to escape our busy, loud, crowded society. The beauty of the woods in its natural state, with all the life in it, is invaluable. Once it's gone, it's gone. The Seeley-Swan corridor has remained mostly untouched by outside tourism which makes it such a wonderful area for locals to enjoy. PLEASE DON'T ALLOW THIS TO HAPPEN! There are some things in life more important than money, let's not let one man's greed cause irreparable damage to this beautiful area. There's a reason Montana is called the last best place and it is not because the land is being raped and pillaged, it's because of the natural, undeveloped beauty.
