Comments: Hello,

There are so few pristine spots left in the US that it would be an extraordinary loss to see these virgin lands blemished by housing and development, no matter how upscale it may look. Let people see nature in its own glory, on footpaths, in a tent, from a canoe, not a car window or home porch. Let's preserve these spots for future generations and simply build higher in existing cities.

Thank you,

Anatol Shmelev
