Comments: Holland Lake is one of the most beautiful undeveloped places in the country and I have always been so thankful that the land around the lake is owned by the US Forest Service because I thought that meant the US Forest Service would protect the land in its' current state for today's general public and future generations to enjoy. Unfortunately I was wrong about assuming the US Forest Service would protect this public land treasure as it appears they are potentially open to approving this major expansion of the Holland Lake Lodge? The expansion will be great for the small number of the people with deep enough pockets to afford to stay at the fancy proposed lodge but it's impossible to say this expansion won't have a negative impact on the general public's experience at Holland Lake as there will be more vehicles, more hikers, and more boats. I really hope the US Forest Service can see that this expansion is not in the public's best interest in any way and shut this expansion proposal down.
