Comments: Holland Lake and the surrounding areas are generally quiet and not over-crowded. The result is a balance with the local wildlife, flora and fauna. There is LOTS of access for public use, an increase in traffic will be a detriment to everyone enjoying the nature of the area, as well as wear and tear on the road access and trails. There is no reason to further develop or allow for further developing of this area. Montana needs to be wild, free, AND accessible. I think Holland Lake is already doing a decent job of that balance.
