Comments: The reason Montana has been purported as the last best place is because of the vast expanses of wilderness it houses. Even though I've only been a resident since 2018, I have seen this beautiful state become a bastion of greed stripped of its natural beauty by those who can afford to do so. I understand that Montana gets a majority of its revenue from tourism, but people are staying and they're paying far above asking price. This expansion is a microcosm of the issues this state has been dealing with for far too long. The last best place is dying and, once it's dead, that's it.
