Comments: I grew up in Condon, Montana and spent every summer on Holland Lake as a kid. Now I get to enjoy it as an adult with my parents who still live there. I didn't realize how special it was until I moved away and spent time in other places across the west. Now I know it is rare to find a community lake (which everyone in town can access) that isn't completely covered in houses or touristy attractions. I would like to see the integrity of the area preserved for future generations. I currently live in an area of Idaho close to Jackson Hole, and can say from experience that once tourist attractions and development begin taking place without VERY intentional and thoughtful planning, the area begins to lose the very things that made it special in the first place. It begins to feel soulless, and I would hate to see the Swan Valley start moving in that direction. Thank you for your time. I just wanted to add my name to the list of folks that care about the area and don't want to see outside groups without transparency begin to take hold.
