Comments: To the concerned citizens and project team at the Flathead National Forest -

The Holland Lake area is size constrained by a lake and by mountains. The hysteria around "save Holland Lake" is just that - hysteria - by people who clearly have no grasp on geography.

It's been several years since I visited the Holland Lake Lodge, but what was clear to me then, and remains clear to me now, is that this is an establishment that needs refurbishment, a partnership, and a planned vision to carry it into the future.

The future is coming, for all of us. So instead of trying to "save" the past, what if instead, we worked together to create a future for generations to come? What can you say "yes" to with this proposed project? What parts do you agree with? A little curiosity about how you can have your voice heard might just create the change we can all agree on.
