Comments: As a native Montanan who grew up camping at the Forest Service campgrounds in the Seeley/Swan valley I am opposed to this entire proposal. I have recreated in this area, hiked to the upper falls and appreciate the lands as they are currently. Removal of the historic cabins and facilities to be replaced by a lodge and other developments should be denied. This proposal takes away from the rustic nature and character of the area. In addition, it caters to the high-income portion of society and is not inclusive to those in lower social-economic situations. The lands will not be able to be enjoyed by all US citizens as the National Forest lands were intended. The fees imposed at these type of resorts cater to the upper class/high income social elite portion of society. Proposals and developments such as what is being proposed should be denied ~ they do not belong on public lands! As stated earlier, this development will only be available to a small portion of society which is not the intent of National Forest Lands. This is not appropriate use of public lands. I would hope the Forest Service as a whole would utilize their time better and focus on providing opportunities to a broader and more inclusive public base, not just for socially elite/rich.
