Comments: Montana is home and Holland Lake is the favorite getaway in the state for my family. Great memories have been made for many Montana families at Holland Lake and that is why it is of great concern that the property known as Holland Lake Lodge may be the new target of out-of-state investors. Montanans are hoping that the forest service has the foresight to see the negative effects the size a "project" like the one being suggested would have on this beautiful ecosystem.

As a long time resident of the state I would strongly encourage the forest service to keep the scale of any new project at Holland Lake at a similar size as the current structures. Keep this part of Montana free of all the issues so well known to the rest of our state, namely outside interests buying areas of profound beauty and using them to line their already full pockets. We love our state the way it is and although the only thing sure in life is change, let that change be for the better of all, not for the greed of a few.
