Comments: We have recreated at and around Holland Lake and trails near for many years. We find it one of the most serene, private places in our area. We frequent the area multiple times a year- upwards of 20. In this serene mountain paradise, it is even hard to accept that there are powered boats on the water (the purists we are). But to imagine a massive complex built, to further take advantage of the land, make another beautiful valley expensive and inaccessible to locals, is obscene and devastating. Perhaps if these investors had any interest in the land as it naturally is, and spent some time here to experience it, they would agree. Consider the wildlife, the extreme and unique access to wilder places beyond the lake, consider the small towns that will be inundated with traffic, consider the infrastructure that will impact the entire water ecosystem, and trickle down into the lakes (Seely, Salmon, etc) and eventually into our rivers. This is so high of a risk for reward. I will never stand with this building plan, and will go out of my way to make the noise necessary to protect this sacred area. OUT OF STATE BUILDERS HAVE NO BUSINESS MONETIZING THESE MOUNTAINS. Take it to other areas that are already ruined. You are not welcome here.
