Comments: I'm opposed to an expansion of Holland Lake Lodge because of the history of elitification of Holland Lake. I've been around enough to remember how the Claibornes pretty much bought out much of the private lakeshore 20 some years ago.

The lodge as it is has historic worth and further, as Spartan as it is, the room rates can only be stratospheric instead of in orbit past the moon.

I'd support a re-engineering of the existing footprint and capacity, beefing and weatherizing the infrastructure in order to promote energy efficiency and fire safety, perhaps even to allow politically-correct "human powered" winter recreation guests, at no greater than existing summer traffic. But a full-blown year round resort as signaled here?

No freaking way. POWDR wants to do that, they can go to the Claiborne clique that owns a mess of PRIVATE lakeshore and glitz THAT up. Leave something for us peasants, or at least us prolets and bourgeoisie. Ordinary Americans have already been robbed of so much access (for work AND play) on the NFS system in the last 30 years. Enough, dang it.
