Comments: I disagree with this project as it undermines the idea of the last best place and what that entails. The area is wild and wilderness. If someone wants internet and all the amenities that go along with urban living, then they should continue living in an urban environment, visit places more to their liking, and leave undisturbed, historic places as they are. If they need to change pristine places, then those places aren't meant for them. This is not in the best interest for the area, Montanans, Montana, nor Americans who treasure these priceless areas.
