Comments: Science, logic and history converge to clarify that this is NO time to expand the footprint or bear the broad impact of of the proposed changes to the Holland Lake Lodge. There is absolutely no benefit to and only loss associated with further destruction of the local environment immediately and on-going should this project proceed as described, as would be the inevitable outcome of increased human activity in the area. Even the few profiteers involved will be harmed, although they apparently blind to their shared vulnerability to a collapsing ecosystem, committed as they are to their own, very different value system.

There is a time to stop, and it's now. Stop diminishing our common spaces, the irretrievable wild, the not-human populations, stop monetizing the spirit of the land and our souls connection to it, to temporally benefit a greedy few.
