Comments: I want to recommend maximizing the quiet non-motorized wilderness quality of the trail for as many miles as possible. I have hiked ~60% of the entire trail and realize that much of it exists on roads rather than trail and so this isn't possible everywhere. I've also hiked many long distance trails around the world, many which allow helicopters and motorized vehicles and pass through highly developed lands, all which in my opinion detracts from the experience. The unique thing that we have in the US is the ability to hike in quiet non-motorized areas with minimal impact as we pass through. I would like to trail to emphasize this type of travel.
