Comments: It has come to my attention that the project behind this mine expansion is farming out positive comments in an online form that deceives users into believing it will be submitted here and has a terms of use that says the mining company may submit on their behalf. If there's a wave of positive only comments, consider that they may have screened the negative comments out.

For the record, it's a very cold day in heck when this project is safe for the watershed where you're at good luck!
