Comments: I am appalled to learn that Kentucky National Forest can be logged and this particular logging plan is much too destructive. We grow up as kids thinking that National Forest is protected area from commercialism, destructive logging and other activities that destroy the landscape and all the living creatures there. If we don't start setting the presedent to actually perserve habitat, we will stay on this greedy path that robs future generations. The peace and tranquility offered when one visits untouched forests that are allowed to do what God intended them to do, is unlike any other calm, peaceful state. These places need to be preserved. They are very much alive.
