Comments: Lemon Gulch is a fantastic project that deserves support from the USFS. It will dramatically improve access to trails for local cyclists while also bringing a significant boost to the local economy in the form of tourist dollars. Increased trail use and the growing popularity of Mountain Biking are realities that will impact the Ochoco National Forest one way or the other. This is a great opportunity to get ahead of things and build intentional, planned trail infrastructure that locals and visitors will be able to enjoy for decades to come. Thanks for listening!
