Comments: I support developing trails in the Lemon Gulch area. The area currently has people using the area for hunting etc.. there is no sustainably built trails and therefore there is access without conservation. When there are official designated trails, conservation becomes the main idea. The trails keep people in a designated area, allowing them to be in the area, without causing harm. The people who maintain the trails, do so, with always looking at sustainability, and less harm and impact on the natural area. So I am 100% in support of developing official trails in the Lemon Gulch area.
