Comments: I am a native Oregonian. As a child my dad would routinely spend a few weeks in the fall hunting in the Ochocos. As an adult I have spent countless hours exploring the Ochocos on my gravel bike. The Ochocos hold a special place in my heart. I lived in Prineville for several years and I always considered this town to be the "Gateway to the Ochocos." I also have enjoyed mountain biking with friends in Central Oregon. My husband and I will often choose a city to vacation in based on its location to nearby trail systems. The concept of a well thought out trail system is invaluable for those who like to recreate because it allows friends and families to mountain bike together despite having different skill levels. I reviewed the Lemon Gulch project documents and I was impressed with its comprehensive and collaborative design. My personal recommendation would be to choose "Alternative 2" because it seems to provide maximal benefit for a wide range of skill levels. Thank you so much for taking the time to review and consider all of the comments on this forum.
