Comments: Utilizing our public lands for responsible and sustainable recreation should always be a priority for the Forest Service. Lemon Gulch is a perfect example of a need (more mtb trails) and a partnership (Ochoco Trails) to sustain the the initiative and create a recipe for success. Time after time we see the benefits that recreation can bring into the surrounding communities, including increasing revenue for local businesses and providing more access to the outdoors for those who live nearby.

Mountain Biking in Lemon Gulch is just one more reason Oregon is a destination for recreation!
