Comments: Do NOT even think about swapping the proposed land(s). The public has it bad enough with access to prime habitat. This trade should be viewed as borderline criminal. I tell you what, if "they" are so worried about knowing where the public can access. Let's have the corner crossing conversation..... I'll wait here.

Another thing, all these rich landowners buy these places that have existing easements for access. Then they post signs, gates, change roads illegally and no one does anything about it. The public needs to take a stand on these issues and stop letting these special interests get away with robbery.
