Comments: I have read the Environmental Analysis for the "Lemon Gulch Trails Project and am writing in opposition to alternatives 2-6, including the preferred alternative consisting of 27.5 miles of high-density, complex trail system. I strongly recommend the Forest Service choose to NO ACTION ALTERNATIVE.

This is a bad fit. The USFS has been given the privilege of stewardship of our federal lands. Those lands and its ecosystem will not be made better only disrupted by a special interest group of bicyclists desiring to build a high density complex of steep mountain bike trails in the Lemon Creek drainage in the Ochoco National Forest.
