Comments: I am writing in opposition to the proposed land swaps in the Crazy Mountains. While the public gains in overall land area what we lose is far greater. In return for some acreage we lose mineral rights, say on roads built on the newly acquired private land, water rights, and one of two main trailheads pushing recreationists to a single access point. Even the proposed access to Crazy Peak for the Crow Tribe isn't an actual guarantee. The Crazies are a stunning range and I treasure my time spent at Blue Lake. While I would love to see great access for all Montanans in this range this deal does nothing but expand the access of the already wealthy Yellowstone Club and the surrounding landowners.
