Comments: I spend six months each year in Melville, Montana and have been following the Crazy Mountain disputes for a number of years, I support the current resolution of the issues including all exchanges. Absent this settlement and the anticipated exchanges, the legal issues will be difficult, expensive and uncertain. The remedies available to a court are not sufficient to fairly and equitably address the complexity of the problems. The parties to the settlement and the proposed exchanges should be commended for their willingness to communicate, their creativity in exploring settlement options and their compromises in crafting the proposed resolution.
