Comments: To whom it may concern,

I've had very personal relationship with the eastern side of the crazies, it is truly a magical place. I have lived, worked, hunted, fished and visited this area for almost 25 years now. It's always been a peculiar issue with access in regards to the eastern side, so its nice to see the issue will possibly finally get resolved. After following the issue for many years (due to having personal relationships with many of the families in the region) it seems like this is the best possible resolution for everyone involved. The exchange will open up access for recreation, but on the same token protect private property rights. I fully support the land exchange and look forward to it moving forward.
