Comments: This East Crazy Land Exchange is the result of a multi-year collaborative process between the Forest Service, landowners, recreation/sportsman groups, and others. This type of process should be a model for how Forest management should be in the future to allow multiple stakeholders a place at the table to discuss mutually beneficial outcomes.

Blocking up contiguous private lands and Forest Service lands makes good sense to provide improved access to the general public into this area, while at the same time protecting wildlife and other resources.
