Comments: This is one of the worst ideas I have heard in recent years. Anyone who has ever seen the South Fork Salmon knows that this is one of the last remaining high elevation, wild salmon living, clean flowing rivers left in the US. I'm sure it's already a done deal, despite all the public comments against such a travesty, since the government wants to build weapons with the minerals extracted, and because gold diggers be greedy and disregard the cost to the rest of us with their toxic projects. But I'll still submit my public comment that this is a wild area and a spectacular river that should be protected at ALL COST. Not sold to the highest bidder. I mean, haven't you already learned that these greed mongers can't be bothered to clean up their messes after they pull out their profit? Here's an idea, why don't you have Stibnite remediate the current superfund site before we even consider allowing them to go back in and irreversibly destroy more?!? I say NO to this plan!!
