I just want to say I am against any actions that can threaten the water sources we have and the wilderness that it might effect. It sounds like it has taken years to clean up from previous mining, so let's not start over again and redestroy the clean up. Many have been working hard to revitalize the rivers so good fish populations can return that do far more for the land, people and animals dependent of them, than gold, silver, Heavy metals and fracking. I include them as all ugly projects that will deface the land and waste huge amounts of water we can no longer afford.

New roads are not good either. The roads just lead to more roads and then the off road people will enjoy going off road some more and before you know, it you got destructive trails all over the place. Just say no to this whole thing.

thanks
