Comments: The south fork of the Salmon is too special, too important to proceed with the Stibnite mining project with such a flawed and incomplete study. The Forest Service should do supplemental analysis to include factors that have been ignored in current study.

I am also alarmed with the prospect of sharing roadways with hundreds of heavy trucks carrying hazardous materials. Those of us who travel to McCall and surrounding areas will be put in danger. Can our roadways even handle this?

I believe the time is coming when water sources will be more valuable than gold.
