Comments: I live in Birch Bay, Washington where our local waters were threatened by a coal terminal that ultimately was ruled by the United States Army Corps of Engineers to have abrogated the treaty rights of Lummi Nation due to the noise and disruption from vessel traffic had permits been granted and its construction proceeded.

It is vital for the Forest Service to ensure that meaningful consultation with impacted tribes has been conducted and that The Stibnite Gold Project cannot receive permits to proceed should it pose threats - including but not limited to noise and disruption - to endangered species such as salmon, steelhead, and bull trout.
