Comments: The River of No Return Wilderness area is one of the last non-developed old bio-diverse areas we have in this country.

This area is very important to protect because as Climate Change increases its rate of changing temperature and weather patterns so large areas of arable land and clean watersheds are no longer available we will need all the natural bio-diverse areas available to help Nature adapt.

Because in reality if Nature can not adapt and starts failing then we will not be able to survive.

This is the unfortunate but simple and straight forward truth.
