Comments: I'm concerned that the salmon river would be unavoidably put in danger if an open pit mine is dug at it's headwaters. This river is extremely important to spawning salmon and any kind of failure from a tailings dam would ruin that for all future generations. The jobs it would make would be short-lived and after the resources are extracted, the large corporations will depart with most of the money and a once beautiful habitat would be turned into another toxic waste site in the area. Please don't sacrifice sustainable wilderness for shortsighted greed.

Thank you
