Comments: From what I have seen so far, this plan does not seem to put conservation first. The species of fish in the salmon are already decreasing in population. This mining plan claims that after they are done with the pit, conservation efforts will be used to restore the environment. But what will happen during operations, will local wildlife be able to survive?

Also, the proposed plan is on public land. What will the public be getting out of this mine? The people of Idaho should benefit from this mine, because it is OUR land and resources that are being used or destroyed.
