Comments: To Whom It Concerns,

I write to implore you to put a stop to the Stibnite gold mine in the headwaters of the precious Salmon River drainage of Idaho. This river provides invaluable habitat to salmon and countless other species and is a prized resource for tourism and recreation for the people of Idaho, the United States, and the world. To poison it with unnecessary mining for the sole purpose of corporate greed is a foolish and despicable act, the consequences of which would be permanent, widespread, and catastrophic, not just to the wildlife, but to the millions of people who love and rely on this beautiful area. Please choose the life and well being of the people and places you represent over the wealth of extractive corporations!

Sincerely,

Jessa Hutchins
