Comments: I do not approve of the Stibnite Gold Project and having this mine impact the river negatively. Rivers are vital resources to both the natural world and to human lives and a mine, especially one put in without the consent of the people will damage this beautiful, important place. The Elwha dam was put in without the consent of the people and forever changed this important river and decimated salmon populations who lived there since time in memorial. The work of the native people of the Peninsula and other local citizens coming together got the dam removed and now the river is healing. Choose to be on the right side of history now and don't put this mine in, instead protect the river and the people and animals who need the river running free.
