Comments: While alternative 6 looks good in some ways, particularly the absence of boats on the lake, the extensive blasting to build a new visitor center is a big negative. The fact that the Mendenhall Glacier is retreating so quickly provides is a climate change lesson in itself. Tourists can learn from this. Building remote viewing sites will just add to the damage. Educate people as to the damage climate change is doing and the fact that we can't just keep wrecking things for our convenience. And enough of bringing in more vehicles - that's part of what got us into this climate change mess in the first place. Any expanded parking should be back toward the Loop Road. Car culture and fossil fuel emissions have no place in our future.

Finally, after 2 years of greatly reduced tourism numbers due to a pandemic, we need to bear in mind that there will be more pandemics, and that the cruise industry will be diminished again. It doesn't seem practical to expect the number of tourists visiting Juneau to keep growing.
