Comments: I have been a frequent user of Jackson Mountain. My wife and I have spent many days in the area hiking, observing flowers and wildlife, harvesting Christmas trees, cutting fuelwood, and in the past, hunting and recreational shooting.

Biking Trails: I think the total number of trails proposed is excessive and would stifle other uses.

I would question the compatibility of myriad biking trails weaving throughout a popular big game hunting area.

Silvicultural work: Aspen is sprouting in the cut areas; both the forest service and contractors have done a good job and I would encourage additional treatment applications.

Gravel Pit: The Jackson Mountain road system was created to haul products from the area. It should work for gravel as well as it has for timber products.
