Comments: I'm pretty certain that it is not lost on the FS that the more closures are enacted, the more restrictions are enforced, the more users are concentrated in other remaining areas. How about opening up areas for usage rather than closing them, you know, managing land for use? You do not magically reduce the number of recreationalist by adding restrictions, you just force them elsewhere. Your closure actions are the equivalent of seeing too many vehicles on a freeway and closing a lane in response. The Highway Department would advise you to build more lanes.
