Comments: As a Colorado citizen for over 40 years and an avid hunter/fisherman, I am extremely concerned that land management plans are prioritizing recreation opportunities over that of wildlife. Without sound management and protections Colorado's wildlife will not be able to withstand the onslaught of encroachment into their traditional migration routes and wintering grounds. The development of trails on and around Jackson Mountain will further pressure critical deer and elk migration routes in this area. I am against rewarding illegal trail creations by simply incorporating them, once established into the management plan. Please consider recommendations by CPW along with sound scientific studies when finalizing your plans. Keep Colorado wild.
