Comments: I agree with the Jackson Mountain project. As a resident of Pagosa Springs, I see the need for a gravel pit, as the potholes up by McDonald's are particularly treacherous. While I understand the idea, however, I also understand the other point of view. The gravel pit might damage the ecosystem with the machines polluting the air. It also might make the roads more dangerous because of the big loads of gravel going from one place to another. I would need more information on the location and stability of the gravel pit before I pick a side.

As for the trails, I don't use them much, as I don't ride horses or mountain bikes and don't go camping often. I think the trails would be a good idea if positioned in a way that each group would be happy and not have issues.

If we insert a few hiking trails, horse trails, and mountain biking trails then there will be plenty of room and options for your preferred type of trail.
