Comments: I am against having a gravel pit on Jackson Mountain. I believe that it would harm the environment and wildlife. I do believe that there are some good things about having the gravel pit, as it is easily accessed and it would be easier to fill potholes. Nevertheless, there is wildlife that will have to suffer because their homes will be filled with gravel and it would probably scare a lot of wildlife away. I also think that it would be too close to trails and homes of people; people that live in those homes would most likely be upset with all of the loud trucks coming through daily. I believe that it would do a lot of noise and air pollution.

All in all, I don't think that the gravel pit should be so close to wildlife and people, it would negatively affect the environment. If people really want the gravel pit I think that they should put it in place that is already affected by noise pollution so it's not doing as much damage to the Jackson Mountain environment.
