Comments: I am a local that has lived here my whole life, and I support the Jackson Mountain gravel pit because I live on a dirt road full of potholes, and I know that is the case for many roads as well, which I think gravel could really help. Gravel could also be used to make new roads to make new locations accessible. I know that Jackson Mountain is a recreational area, and used for many different purposes. I think some people might not want the gravel pit, because they might use the area for recreation or living. One solution would be to make a gravel pit, but move the location to a less-used place. This would benefit both groups because everyone can agree that we need gravel, but the location is not the best place.
