Comments: I love to go hiking in spite of the fact that I have never been to Jackson Mountain doesn't make this a easy. I know few people who have been there so it still makes it very difficult to. I think that if people are hiking and biking and horseback riding all on the same trail it may get a bit messy if you run into each other and could cause injuries. So I think this means that I would be okay for the gravel pit and it might be good to make more trails for everyone to. I also think making trails for certain types of activities would be a great idea and then putting gravel down to get rid of potholes.

I think gravel pits can also be good for keeping everyone safe and not having people get hurt by all of the hazards that the unpaved roads can cause. We also just need gravel for the environment and to keep the environment looking better with gravel and not just plants. In, conclusion I don't have a big opinion but I think that gravel pits would be good for the environment and safety reasons.
