

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 2/25/2023 2:19:58 PM

First name: Juan

Last name: Martinez

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Biggest concern is the amount of humans moving to Colorado it seems they are starting to focus on our mountain areas for residential with all these people moving in our mountains fire mitigation is key and I don't think it's up to state parks or national forest it is completely up to the new homeowners to clear the property in a safe manner for the rest of the forest please do not destroy our habitat to save homes this situation in the I 70 corridor metro from Denver to Utah seems that we put human needs over our forest needs as I see it come closer to the San Luis Valley it makes my heart hurt to see what is in store for our beautiful state we must slow the invasion into our mountain areas and use caution these mountains will soon look like the I70 corridor and it is only good for the population not the surrounding areas

A concerned hunter fisherman camper and arborist from southern Colorado