Comments: It is ridiculous and reckless to continue to log forests in the face of our climate emergency. I cannot understand how businesses and governments can continue to try and justify practices like these as we face unprecedented weather that has been scientifically proven to be a result of human actions. Stop relying on individual action to make a difference, and start taking responsibility. We need to stop our misuse of the forestland around our state, and to acknowledge that inconvenience and increased costs are a small price for a healthier planet. You have a responsibility to the lands you steward.
